Notes from the teacher:

Enrollment for next year is open. The priority window ends March 8, when public enrollment begins. We expect preschool rooms to fill up quickly, so it is important for families returning to get those forms and registration fees in order to reserve a spot.

I have been informed that next year I will be teaching a 2nd grade and 3rd grade split class. Therefore if you plan to attend open house on March 9th you will come and visit me again. I am so excited for this new adventure and have already started planning.

What We are learning this week:

reading

This week we will be reading "The Signmaker's Assistant". We will be learning about word structure, realism and fantasy.

Writing

We will be learning about research writing. We will begin writing our paragraphs for the wax museum display boards. Writing will need to be displayed on a tri-fold board, if you would like to purchase one in advance.

Math

We will focus on estimating and measuring the length, capacity, and weight/mass of an object and find the temperature in the standard customary and metric systems.

Science/Social studies

We will be learning more about decision making. Students will begin to develop understanding of exchange and trade as well as import and exports.
